

Love Letters by Sarah Miller

A funny, fast moving drama about love, art and class from one of the UK's freshest new writing companies

'If there's something stirring in new theatre from the North of England, then the Ashton Group from Barrow-in-Furness in Cumbria must be one of the more exciting elements in that change.'

LOVE LETTERS BY SARAH MILLER

Paula and Mags write to men in prison.

Love Letters is about what happens when one of those men turns up on the doorstep of Paula's terraced house.

She thinks she's getting a sexy hard man who'll be a dad for her kids but Andy's got other plans.

He thinks he's going to be a celebrity artist and he sets about proving it right there in the front room with some very alarming results...

Love Letters is a funny and fast moving drama about what we put up with in the search for love and what a load of crap ART can be.

Directed by Rachel Ashton
Designed by Paul Kondras

Love Letters contains strong language and some sexual imagery.
